Moreover, understanding the discourse function of questions will help learners master the uses of questions. The purpose of the present study was to verify the applicability of Tsui's (1995) model of conversational analysis, specifically to the different subclasses of Elicitation questions (i.e., inform, agree, commit, repeat and clarify) in English and Persian. This study also intended to contrast the subcategories of Elicitation questions in English and Persian modern plays. To achieve the objectives, three modern English plays and three modern Persian plays were selected. In order to determine the frequency of each subcategory of Elicitation questions of each language 361 instances from the English plays and 337 instances from the Persian plays were analyzed and compared. A Chi-square test was used to determine whether the difference was statistically significant. The results indicated that Tsui's characterization of the elicitation regardless of its syntactic form is feasible. Furthermore, Tsui's classification of Elicitation questions into five subcategories in terms of discourse functions of the utterances is applicable. The findings also showed that first, both English and Persian texts used more Elicit: Inform and Elicit: Clarify; second, English and Persian texts used less Elicit: Commit and Elicit: Repeat respectively; third, Persian texts used Elicit: Agree twice more than those of English texts. The stated differences were shown to be statistically significant. 128 pp. Englisch.
