It must be a warm zeal for the common good that must inspire a good man to act in those walls honestly. So many rubs, affronts, and scratches will meet with him as shall make his heart ache. Nay, it is strange, considering how disorderly Bills pass, that common sense comes out. Everyone offers his conceit for wording clauses, and many without much attention to the connexion, and others as supine to let it pass. But enough of this sorrowful reflection. 236. It was not long before the rising of the Parliament that a Bill for a register of estates was brought in. This Bill was much opposed, and particularly by the gentlemen of the gown; and to say truth...
